

Table of Contents

Foreword	5
Executive Summary	8
Introduction	12
Methodology	13
Background	15
The Palaung people	16
Status of Palaung women	17
Access to health and education	18
Political history	21
Traditional self-rule	21
Formation of the Palaung resistance movement	21
PSLA ceasefire with the Burmese military regime	22
Forced disarming of the PSLA	23
Opium growing in Palaung areas	24
No tradition of growing opium	24
Increase in opium growing following the 1991 ceasefire	25
Attempts by PSLA to deal with drug problem	27
SPDC's War on Drugs leaves militia untouched	28
Situation worsens after disarming of PSLA	28
Growing addiction in Palaung communities	29
Increasing Addiction	30
Box: Profile of Interviewees	31
Factors leading to the current situation	31
The decline of the local tea industry	31
Turning to opium growing	32
Migration to work	33

Opium as medicine	34
A growing culture of drug-taking	35
The Voices of Women	37
The Burden of Addicted Men	38
Husbands no longer working for the family	38
Selling off family possessions and property	38
Borrowing, theft, and drug dealing	39
Neglect of children	40
Rage outbursts and domestic violence	41
Impacts on Wives	41
Struggling as the sole breadwinner	41
Vulnerability to ill health	42
Mental stress	44
Community rejection	45
Impacts on daughters	46
Taken out of school	46
Financial obligation to the father	46
Trafficking	47
Impacts on mothers	47
Double suffering: husbands and sons addicted	47
Hopes for the future dashed	48
Anxiety for sons' welfare	49
Struggling to cope	49
Placing hopes on rehabilitation despite	49
low recovery rates
Obstacles to divorce	50
Temptation to take drugs	53
Conclusion and Recommendations	54
Appendix 1 – List of interviews	56
Appendix 2 – Selected testimony	59