

Part 1. Energy services for the world's poor

Scorecard for power sector reform in developing countries, 1998	Inside front cover
Acknowledgments		vi
Foreword		vii
			1. Reaching the poor in the age of energy reform
			Penelope J. Brook and John Besant-Jones 2
			Customer first 7
			2. Energy access, energy demand, and the information deficit
			Alan Townsend 8
			Annex. Energy use around the world—evidence from household surveys
			Kristin Komives, Dale Whittington, and Xun Wu 14
			3. Better energy services, better energy sectors—and links with the poor
			Catherine Waddams Price 26
			4. Measuring the impact of energy reform—practical options
			Vivien Foster 34
			New tools 43
			5. Key drivers of improved access—service through networks
			Stephen Powell and Mary Starks 44
			6. Key drivers of improved access—off-grid service
			Eduardo Villagran 52

Part 2. Trends in private investment in the energy sector, 1990-99

7. The role of energy subsidies Douglas F. Barnes and Jonathan Halpern	60
8. The costs of corruption for the poor Laszlo Lovei and Alastair McKechnie	68
9. A case study on subsidizing rural electrification in Chile Alejandro Jadresic	76
10. A case study on exclusive concessions for rural off-grid service in Argentina Alvaro J. Covarrubias and Kilian Reiche	84
11. A case study on private provision of photovoltaic systems in Kenya Mark Hankins	92
New rules	101
12. Better energy services for the poor Penelope J. Brook and Warrick P. Smith	102

Private participation in energy Ada Karina Izaguirre	108
Rapid growth in private activity
Latin America and East Asia lead
Investment concentrated in middle-income countries
Electricity projects predominate
Looking ahead
Changes in project finance for energy
Plans for reform in East Asian electricity markets
Annex. Data sets and database information	118
Energy projects by country
Energy projects by region and type

Part 3. Selected readings and key contacts at the World Bank Group

Energy access, energy reform, and poverty alleviation: selected readings	124
Key contacts at the World Bank Group	126
Scorecard for oil and gas sector reform in developing countries, 1998	Inside back cover