

Contents

Foreword by Anna Tibaijuka,
Executive Director of UN-Habitat . . . 8

Introduction 10

Section 1 – Urban and Digital Frontiers

Chapter 1

Setting the scene 14

Setting the scene: girls in cities and
new technologies 15

Outlining the context and the rationale for the 2010 report. 15

Chapter 2

Bright lights and big hopes: adolescent girls in the city 24

The global context of
urbanisation and youth 25

Streets of gold? Why adolescent girls move to cities. 30

Girls' legal rights in the city. 31

The best recipe? The benefits of city life for adolescent girls 38

The law on girls and the right to protection from hazardous or exploitive work. 41

Feature: My ideal city –
girls' drawings 42

No safe place? Preventing violence against adolescent girls in the city . 53

Chapter 3

Hidden in plain view:
adolescent girls on the streets 64

Defining disadvantage 65

Hidden in plain view –
adolescent street girls 67

“Call me by my own name” –
attitudes towards girls
on the street. 68

Feature: Trust is a dangerous thing – girls living on the streets in Egypt. . 70

Why do adolescent girls leave home for the street? 72

“I wish I was a boy” – sexual exploitation and abuse of adolescent girls. 73

TARIQ AND STAN THEKAERARA

Girls on the move in busy Bangalore, India.

Chapter 4
Adolescent girls and communications technologies: opportunity or exploitation? 100

Introduction 101

The digital revolution and the digital divide 102

Giving us freedom – why communications technologies are important for adolescent girls. 105

Girls and international standards on equal access to information/media 109

Breaking the silence: girls, the super-communicators? 110

Barriers: what is keeping adolescent girls from accessing communications technologies? ... 112

The dark side of cyberspace – how technology is increasing sexual exploitation 119

What laws are there to protect girls from violence, exploitation and abuse online? 120

Using the law to prosecute sexual exploitation, abuse and violence online 124

Legal responses to young people who sexually exploit others through new technologies. 125

Feature: Brazilian adolescent girls in a digital world 130

Unleashing girls’ potential: Recommendations on adolescent girls and ICTs 135

Conclusion 140

The role of the police in ‘protecting’ girls on the streets ... 75

The rights of girls in conflict with the law under international law. ... 77

“We have dreams too” – street girls’ resilience 79

Feature: The forgotten few – adolescent girls’ experiences of detention and rehabilitation in two cities in the Philippines 83

The daily diary of Sheena 89

Adolescent girls’ right to the city – a call to action 90

Section 2 – Because We are Girls: ‘Real Choices, Real Lives’

Cohort study update 142

Empowered and Lifted Out of Poverty? How our young girls and their families measure up to the Millennium Development Goals 145

Cohort Study Map 156

Section 3 – Reference

Because I am a Girl campaign. ... 160

Introduction 161

Mapping the MDGs:

MDG1 Proportion of girls under-5 years that are underweight 162

MDG2 Girls’ gross primary school graduation rate... 164

MDG3 Proportion of girls aged 15-19 years married by age 15 166

Female transition from primary to secondary education 167

Estimated female earned income 168

MDG4 Infant mortality rates and Proportion of young women aged 20-24 years that have achieved at least secondary education ... 170

MDG6 Ratio of young women to young men living with HIV 172

References 174

Girls online 189

About Plan International..... 197

Plan Offices 198